HOW TO KEEP YOUR CHILD SAFE ONLINE

SOCIAL MEDIA SITES

- Most people use social media to stay connected with friends and have fun.
- However, there are many that don't play by the same rules, and instead merely use it as a platform to offend people or cause them harm.
- Don't let these users ruin your experience, but make sure that you are sensible by keeping your profiles secure.
- Avoid being a target by following these simple steps.

- Set your profiles to private

Do you really want the whole world seeing everything that you post online? Set profiles to 'friends/followers' only.

How to make YouTube child-friendly

We take a look at YouTube's safety options and see whether they cut the mustard

Although YouTube is home to some of the world's biggest child-friendly video makers, you should still supervise your children as they're browsing YouTube. This is because there are currently no catch-all ways of stopping objectionable content - whatever your view of that might be - from making it on to your kids' screens. There are a few ways to make things a bit safer, though, which I'll explain below.
